You love sales. You're terrific at what you do. And you can't wait for a new opportunity to use your talent. You can do that easily by creating a smashing sales cover letter. First list all the duties you've had and any awards you've received that you can include in your sales cover letters. Your resume will go into more detail. Your sales cover letters will simply highlight what you've done so the employer will want to read your resume to find out more. Stress your ability to sell in each sales cover letter you write. You know the drill. You're so good that you can even sell memberships to a tanning salon in the desert.
